GLOBAL WARMING

Graham Allen and Alan Simpson have both committed themselves to the Climate Change Bill which will be introduced in the House of Commons. Graham Allen said 'Global Warming is the biggest problem being faced by mankind and this Bill starts the process of setting the British Government serious targets to help make a real impact on this threat. Alan and I are convinced that swift action is needed and we will be working with local schools and others to try and highlight this issue in Nottingham'.

Alan Simpson said, 'Climate change crises will challenge all the presumptions about how we live in the 21st century. Graham and I want to involve local children, communities, the city council and national leaders in the practical tasks of putting sustainability at the centre of everything we do.'

For further information please contact Graham or Alan. Note to picture editors; the picture below was taken at the house of commons, it shows Alan and graham at the launch of the climate change bill, in front of the web site for schools.
